STYLE GUIDE

CREATED: MARCH 2021

Hey there.

THESE ARE YOUR BRANDING ASSETS.
(KIND OF IMPORTANT)

It's best to follow these guidelines as closely as possible in both print and web applications as they are the foundation of your brand. As your business grows, this guide may need updating from time to time. Reach out to Left Hand Design should you have any questions when using this guide.

LOGOS PRIMARY

These are the PRIMARY versions of your logo.

The STACKED & HORIZONTAL LOGOS are the heroes and should be used in all applications where the spacing works best. The ICON should be used prodominantly in social media, but can also be used as a design element in print and web applications.

LOGOS 1-COLOR & REVERSE

These are examples of your 1-COLOR & REVERSE versions. Anything outside of what is shown here is NOT recommended and falls outside the scope of your brand. It is recommended to only reverse your logo out of colors that fall within your branding palette. You can reverse out of black in black and white applications, or an image with a color overlay that has ample contrast like the example to the right.

LOGOS POSITIONING

Let your logos breathe. Don't overcrowd them with type or other graphic elements in print and web applications. See example to the right and use your best judgement for proper clear space around your logos.

COLORS

These are the official colors of your brand. It is recommended to stay within these boundaries for things such as printed marketing materials, websites and online advertising. As your brand evolves, specifically in product marketing, your palette may need to expand – in which case this page may need to be updated from time to time.

NOTE: Your chosen Pantone color does not always represent the accurate hex, rgb and cmyk breakdowns listed in this style guide. These recommendations are chosen individually by the designer on a case by case basis.
